Dear SALC Colleagues,

Let me begin by stating how honored I am to be Chair of SALC for 2021-2022! SALC has been such a vibrant section of ASA and the main intellectual home for many of our members including myself. As we attempt to be a more inclusive Section, the Executive Committee and I will continue to devote our energies to growing the Section, retaining the commitment to mentoring activities, and developing outreach to under-represented groups.

I want to thank Jennifer Karas Montez and Toni Calasanti, our two previous Chairs, who deftly managed the shift to an online mode of conferencing and rose to the occasion during challenging times. As we (hopefully) engage in-person for the 2022 ASA meeting, I believe we will come to appreciate even more the welcoming spirit that characterizes our Section. Next summer will mark a return to the mentoring dinner that Janet Wilmoth, Chair of the Mentoring Committee, and her associates will be organizing in Los Angeles. I am sure we all look forward to personally interacting with each other again.

The section cannot function as well as it does without the extraordinary efforts of its leadership. We are fortunate to have Jennifer Karas Montez as former-Chair take leadership of the Nominations Committee for election of Section officers. I also want to warmly welcome Stefanie Möllborn, our Chair-Elect, who is chairing the Matilda White Riley Outstanding Publication Award Committee this year.

I am grateful to those who volunteered to chair our Section award committees, namely Melissa Hardy, Chair of the Outstanding Publication Award Committee, Feinian Chen, Chair of the Outstanding Student Paper Award Committee, and Linda George, last year’s winner of the Outstanding Mentorship Award, who is chairing the current committee for this award. Please note that the deadline for award nominations is March 1, 2022. I encourage you to nominate yourself or others for these awards!

Dawn Carr will be continuing as Secretary/Treasurer, providing valuable service managing the critical administrative functions necessary for the Section to operate. I want to thank Miles Taylor for continuing as chair of the Membership Committee. Maintaining membership has been challenging for all ASA sections over the last two years. However, we have seen a commensurate growth in the number of SALC members since 2020—promising news as we attempt to reach the 600 membership mark necessary for receiving an additional session at the annual meeting.

We also welcome our new Council Members, Andre Christie-Mizell and Anna Muraco who will be organizing the SALC roundtable session for 2022. With appreciation, I acknowledge the valuable contributions of continuing members of Council including Amélie Quesnel-Vallée, Jason Houle, Bridget Goosby, and Stephanie Ureña. And a hearty welcome to our two new student members Melanie Zoraida and Vesna Pajovic.

I want to recognize the significant contributions of Shannon Shen and Stephanie Ureña who edit and publish the Section’s newsletters, Stacy Torres for managing our listserv, Jeffrey Lentz for overseeing the Section’s Facebook page, Duygu Basaran for managing our Twitter account, and Julia Wolf for updating the SALC webpage. All have been instrumental in informing our membership about activities and opportunities within and beyond the Section and keeping us well connected!

The SALC Program Committee for this year consists of Jacqui Angel and Jennifer Ailshire who will be organizing two open SALC symposia for the 2022 ASA meeting: one on caregiving in diverse social contexts and the other on multinational comparisons in aging and the life course. Please mark your calendars for the annual meeting August 5-9 and SALC section day Monday August 8. The due date for submitting a paper to the program is February 9, 2022.
Continued from page 1

As brisk autumn weather arrives and we move toward the holiday season, I am encouraged that we will emerge from what for many of us was a challenging period in our personal and professional lives. My hope is that we will reconnect for scholarly exchange, meeting old friends and making new ones, at the Los Angeles meeting this summer.

I thank all who have contributed to the success of SALC and for your continued membership in our forward-looking Section!

With best wishes,

Merril
Merril Silverstein, SALC Chair (2021-2022)
The SALC Mentoring Dinner is scheduled for ASA 2022!

Janet Wilmouth, Melanie Plascencia, and Vesna Pajovic are planning a memorable evening in Los Angeles. Stay tuned for further information. It will be great to see everyone again!
Award Winners

2020 Matilda White Riley Distinguished Scholar Award

Ellen Idler
Professor of Sociology at Emory University

The Matilda White Riley award was not provided this year due to the pandemic. Ellen Idler will deliver her lecture at ASA 2022.

2021 Outstanding Mentor Award

Linda George
Professor Emerita of Sociology at Duke University

2021 Outstanding Publication Award

Courtney Boen
University of Pennsylvania

Selection Committee: Susan Short (chair), Tirth Bhatta, Kenneth Ferraro, and Zhenmei Zhang

Paper: “Criminal justice contacts and psychophysiological functioning in early adulthood: Health inequality in the carceral state.” Published in Journal of Health and Social Behavior

2021 Graduate Student Paper Award

Leafia (Zi) Ye
University of Wisconsin-Madison

Selection Committee: I-Fen Lin (chair), Marc Garcia, Jason Houle, Scott Landes, and Amélie Quesnel-Vallee

Paper: “Continuous integration or cumulative (dis)advantage? U.S. Immigrants’ economic trajectories in later life.”

Honorable Mention: 2021 Graduate Student Paper Award

Tabitha Wilber
University of Wisconsin-Madison

Paper: “Stressed but not depressed: A longitudinal analysis of first-generation college students, stress, and depressive symptoms.” Published in Social Forces
Podcast Showcase

Podcast: USC Lessons in Lifespan Health
https://lifespanhealth.usc.edu/lessons-in-lifespan-health/

From the USC Leonard Davis School of Gerontology, this is Lessons in Lifespan Health, a podcast about the science — and scientists — improving how we live and age.

Five Questions for Merril Silverstein

Hometown?
I spent most of my childhood in Flushing NY, a quiet town only 30 minutes from midtown Manhattan by train. My best memories were playing basketball in my driveway and touch football in the street with neighborhood friends, at least when we weren’t playing Strato-Matic Baseball (a table-top game with dice and cards that mirrored probabilities in the real baseball world). The better part of my youth was spent watching the Mets lose and then win at Shea Stadium. Looking back, Flushing provided the best of suburban and urban life, where going into “the city” was still an adventure. Queens was the forgotten borough when I was growing up (outside Staten Island), but it is now the cool place to live as a Brooklyn alternative and home to the most authentic Asian eateries in the city. But if one were in the know about Lemon Ice King of Corona, Latin American restaurants in Jackson Heights, and what many considered the best NYC-style pizza joint around, it was always cool.

Proudest Accomplishment?
Professionally, it would be winning the Matilda White Riley award which is the pinnacle of career achievement in the sociology of aging and a humbling source of peer recognition. Another is continuing the Longitudinal Study of Generations into its 50th year despite serious bumps in the funding road. Personally, I am proud to have celebrated 25 years of marriage to a classy opera singer and that my daughter was accepted at USC, a school for which I will always have great fondness.

Your first-ever job?
My first-ever job (not counting delivering newspapers) was as a delivery-person for a drug store when I was in high school. For some reason they did not provide a bike, so I did a lot of walking. I often took detours along the East River when I was delivering to the local nursing home, which provided expansive views of the water and the sparkling city at night, and the peacefulness to reflect on my future.

A surprising fact about yourself?
Science fiction played a role in inspiring me to become a social scientist. In particular, the Foundation Trilogy by Isaac Asimov (now a fantastic, serialized show on Apple+) had as its central premise the science of “psychohistory” in which events centuries into the future could be predicted by mathematical algorithms. As a 13 year old, I was utterly fascinated by this concept, presaging a keen interest in understanding aging and the life course in that same way-- but obviously on a much shorter time scale!

Best piece of professional advice you’ve ever received?
Vern Bengtson was a valued mentor to me over most of my career. I took to heart his emphasis on theory building as the best strategy to make the most of empirical findings. If gerontology were to become a true discipline, he often said, it had to be more than a collection of disparate facts. His best guidance to me as an emerging scholar was encouraging me to network with luminaries in the field of aging. He sometimes asked me to drive visiting scholars to the airport, which allowed me to have one-on-one “captive” conversations with the likes of George Maddox and Robert Butler among others. I learned how to be a more effective mentor from Vern’s encouragement to engage the social side of social science. A runner-up piece of valuable advice was provided by Neal Krause who recommended submitting a rejected article to a higher ranked journal than the one that did the rejecting. The message was to believe in the quality of your work and move on to something better.
I am a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Sociology at Western University in Ontario, Canada. My research broadly examines employment stability across the life course, changes in employment stability across cohorts, and labor market stratification by gender and sexual orientation. My research is inspired and driven by methodological developments within life course sociology, particularly in terms of longitudinal life course trajectory modelling.

My doctoral dissertation investigates how employment stability has changed across cohorts from the 1960s to the present day using theory on life course de-standardization and the sociology of risk, longitudinal panel data from the Panel Study of Income Dynamics (PSID), and sequence analysis and related techniques. I examine employment status changes across multiple cohorts over the 51 years currently available from the PSID, encompassing very different economic contexts including the end of the early post-war boom to the mid-1970s, the slow growth from then to the early 1990s, the acceleration during the 1990s followed by very slow growth during the 2000s--until recently.

My most recent collaborative work includes a study on the relationship between work-limiting disability and wealth among older workers using longitudinal panel data from the PSID. This study is part of a larger scale project examining how social and environmental factors affect health outcomes across cohorts, as well as the inter-generational transmission of health outcomes. This project benefits under the guidance of Andrea Willson and Kim Shuey of Western University. In another multi-study collaborative project with Sean Waite (Western University) and Nicole Denier (University of Alberta), I help advance quantitative research on lesbian, gay, and bisexual (LGB) employment in the Canadian context, investigating gender- and sexuality-based disparities in wages, poverty, and labour force participation. Within this collaboration I have also undertaken a leading role investigating LGB self-employment. The studies that have come out of this wider project make a particularly important contribution to the research literature on Canadian inequality with the most representative estimates of earnings and household income inequality by gender and sexual orientation to date. In particular, we are finding that the intersection of gender, sexual orientation, and family status (e.g., marital status and parenthood status) create particular sites of disadvantage for sexual minorities--particularly for sexual minority women.

I am honored to have recently been given the opportunity to serve as SALC student representative for this year alongside Melanie Plasencia. We look forward to serving the section as best we can to enhance the student membership experience. This is my first year joining SALC and I hope it is the first of many more to come.
News & Announcements

SALC Seeks Award Nominations

SALC Mentoring Award

SALC has a rich legacy of mentoring, both of students and junior faculty. We want to honor this history by recognizing SALC members who have distinguished themselves as mentors in the field of aging and the life course. Submit a nomination of a candidate by March 1, 2022. Letters of nomination should describe the nominee's contributions to mentoring in the area of aging and the life course that warrant consideration. If multiple persons wish to nominate a person, we strongly encourage co-signers on a single nomination letter. Nominations can be sent to Linda George, Chair of the Outstanding Mentor Award Committee, at linda.george@duke.edu. Other committee members include Amélie Quesnel-Vallée, Jill Suitor, and Vesna Pajovic.

Matilda White Riley Distinguished Scholar Award

This annual award honors a scholar in the field of aging and the life course who has shown exceptional achievement in research, theory, policy analysis, or who has otherwise advanced knowledge of aging and the life course. To nominate a colleague for the MWR Distinguished Scholar Award:

- Submit a full nomination letter by March 1, 2022. Letters of nomination should describe the nominee's contributions to the study of aging and the life course that warrant consideration. If multiple persons wish to nominate a person, we strongly encourage co-signers on a single nomination letter.

Nominations will be carried over for two years. Materials should be sent to Stephanie Möllborn, Chair of the Matilda White Riley Distinguished Scholar Award Committee, at mollborn@sociology.su.se. Other committee members include Amélie Quesnel-Vallée, Jason Houle, and Madonna Harrington Meyer.

Outstanding Publication Award

This annual award honors an outstanding recent contribution to the field of sociology of aging and the life course as determined by the Outstanding Publication Award Committee. Eligible publications include original research reports, theoretical or methodological developments, and policy-related contributions. The outstanding publication can be an article or book chapter published within the past three years (from 2019-2021) are eligible for the 2022 award. A single author or one of the coauthors must be a SALC member. Multiple entries cannot by submitted by the same author(s); please choose the strongest entry. Only SALC members are permitted to make nominations, but nominators should make only one nomination. Self-nominations are accepted. Papers that have been uploaded as Advance Access articles but have not yet been published cannot be submitted until next year.

A nomination letter should accompany a PDF of the article or chapter. The letter should provide the full citation, describe the scope of the manuscript, and highlight some of its contributions to the field. Nominations of publications for the award should be sent to Melissa Hardy, Chair of the Outstanding Publication Award Committee, at Melissa.Hardy@psu.edu. Other committee members include Jeylan Mortimer, Estaban Calvo, and Kenzie Latham Minus. All nominations are due by March 1, 2022.

Graduate Student Paper Award

This annual award honors an outstanding paper written by a graduate student member(s) of SALC, as determined by the Graduate Student Paper Award committee. The award consists of $250 presented to the winner at the SALC Business Meeting, held during the annual ASA meeting.

Papers authored or coauthored solely by students are eligible; faculty co-authorship is not allowed. Eligible student authors include master's and pre-doctoral student members of the section who are currently enrolled in a graduate program, or who have graduated no earlier than December 2021. Unpublished, under review, accepted, or published papers are eligible. If published, the paper should have appeared within the past two calendar years (e.g., a paper nominated in 2022 may have been published anytime during 2020 or 2021). Unpublished papers should not exceed 9,000 words of text (not including references, tables, etc).

To be nominated, send an electronic version of the paper along with a completed and signed SALC Grad Student Paper Award Nomination Form to Feinian Chen, Chair of the Graduate Student Paper Award Committee, at fchen1@umd.edu. Other committee members include Bridget Goosby, Stephanie Ureña, and Mara Sheftel. All nominations are due by March 1, 2022, and self-nominations are encouraged.

Please submit names of your colleagues for these important forms of recognition. Self-nominations are also welcome. Recent winners can be found at:

News & Announcements

Section Member Publications

Call for Papers

Work and Occupations' Special Issue on Precarious Employment and Well-Being During the COVID-19 Pandemic

Deadline extended! Work and Occupations is now accepting full papers through November 22, 2021 23:59 PST. The original Call-for-Papers can be found here. If you are considering submitting to the special issue, now is the time! If you have already started your submission process but have not yet finished, you now have an additional week to do so.

Conference of Interest

Macrosystem Challenges to Lifespan Human Development: Advancing Conceptualizations, Methodologies, and Strategic Responses

Society for the Study of Human Development (SSHD) Conference Series!

Topic: Macrosystem Challenges to Lifespan Human Development
Presentation dates: Nov 1, Feb 7, Apr 4, June 13
Format: Online events, distributed across 4 seasons
Key Foci: Invited Keynote Speakers will address:
- Conceptualizing Macrosystems (Nov 1)
- Community Macrosystems (Feb 7)
- Attitudinal Macrosystems (Apr 4)
- Existential Challenges to the Macrosystem (June 13)

Highlights of the full conference—including names of invited keynote speakers—are here. Details about Keynote Topics & Speakers are here. Details of conference theme are here. All events are free for SSHD members! Information about joining or other routes to conference access are here.
Call for Announcements

Submit your announcements, recent publications, and other news to be included in our next newsletter!

Announcements for the Winter newsletter should be emailed by February 2022 to co-editors Stephanie Ureña (surena@umd.edu) & Shannon Shen (sshen@tamusa.edu)

You can peruse previous newsletters, read about your membership benefits, and more at our section website:

http://asasalc.org/

---

We are on Facebook & Twitter!

Follow us to engage with the SALC community and be notified of the latest research, events, and job opportunities related to our section.

https://www.facebook.com/groups/SALC.ASA/https://twitter.com/asa_salc?lang=en

---

Section on Aging and the Life Course

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Chair</th>
<th>Council</th>
<th>Membership &amp; Comm. Officers</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Merrill Silverstein
Syracuse University
merrils@syr.edu | Jason Houle (’22)
Dartmouth University
Jason.houle@dartmouth.edu | Miles G. Taylor
Membership Chair
Florida State University
mtaylor3@fsu.edu |
| Chair Elect | Amélie Quesnel-Vallée (’22)
McGill University
Amerlie.quesnelvallee@mcgill.ca | Stephanie Ureña
Newsletter editor
University of Maryland
surena@umd.edu |
| Stephanie Möllborn
Stockholm University
mollborn@sociology.su.se | Bridget Goosby (’23)
University of Texas at Austin
bgoosby@prc.utexas.edu | Shannon Shen
Newsletter editor
Texas A&M University-San Antonio
sshen@tamusa.edu |
| Past Chair | Stephanie Ureña (’23)
University of Maryland
surena@umd.edu | Julia Kay Wolf
Section Web Manager
University of Texas at San Antonio
Julia.wolf@utsa.edu |
| Jennifer Karas Montez
Syracuse University
jmontez@maxwell.syr.edu | André Christie-Mizell (’24)
Vanderbilt University
andre.christie-mizell@vanderbilt.edu | Stacy Torres
Listserv editor
University of California, San Francisco
stacy.torres@ucsf.edu |
| Secretary/Treasurer | Anna Muraco (’24)
Loyola Marymount University
Annamaria.Muraco@lmu.edu | Jeffrey Lentz
Facebook Manager
University of North Georgia-Gainesville
Jeffrey.lentz@ung.edu |
| Dawn Carr
Florida State University
dccarr@fsu.edu | | Duygu Basaran
Twitter Manager
Graduate Center – CUNY
dbasaransahin@gradcenter.cuny.edu |
| Student Members | | |
| Melanie Z. Plasencia (’23)
Dartmouth College
Melanie.Z.Plasencia.GR@Dartmouth.edu | | |
| Vesna Pajovic (’23)
Western University
vpajovic@uwo.ca | | |